BREED THEATER. The Mexican Revolutionist, the Sensational Story of a Fight for Freedom.

At the Breed theater today the thrilling story of Mexico entitled The Mexican Revolutionist is the headliner. This committee hurried to downtown hotel hendquarters at the conclusion of the flum, the revolutionist, who is encamped with his compatriots just outside fluadalayara, and who volunteers to more the federal camp and learn the memy's numbers. While on hostile ground Juan protects Marcella, a pretty Mexican girl, from the attacks of an intoxicated federal soldier. The latter is not so far deprived of his senses, however, but he recognizes the revolutionist and gives the alarm. Juan, feeing from the federals, seeks shelter in the home or Marcella's father, Felipe, but is apprehended, and his two friends are taken with him, charged with being sympathizers. During the night Juan escapes from prison and joins his party who proceed in force to Guadalayara, capture the city and liberate Marcella and Felipe. Juan's life is now best with many dangers, but he does not forget the charming little girl who harsed his triple, and two months later. very strong and brilliant story tells of Juan, the revolutionist, who is encamppot forget the charming little girl who significance or value in attempting to measure the relative strength of the as is rewarded with her hand.

IMPATIENCE. "Wait" do you may? But my arms fairly ache for you.

Och, but the waiting is dreary and long:
Sweet, the old heart of me's ready to break for you;
Sure, and the wish for you's growing more atrong!
Faith, I get mad for the sound and the sight of you.

Ay, and the fouch of your head on my breast,
And the feel of your hand and the kisses so light of you.

"Wait" do you say? and "It's all for the best."

Wait!" do you say? But I'm burning with fire for you. Crying aloud for you nightfime and Crying alded for you nightlime and day:

And my body and soul are athrill wind desire for you.

Wasting me awaitly and surely away.

"Wait!" do you say? Is the heart of Fou numb to me?

Where is your pity, love—vanished and flown?

Och, but I love you: ch, come to me, come to me!

"Wait!" do you say? But I'm wantling My Own!

ORCHARD MAGIC.

Something once I found
Found and lost long since!
Glimpse, and shadow-sound.
Footfalls airy prints
In the orchard, in the orchard,
Gone ere middle of the May.
Something someone found, but lost
again this many and many a day!

Something-someone-Something someone does

Nay, the past, the gone;

Something someone shock

Branches tinted of the dawn

In the orchard, in the orchard,

Someone shock that third spray;

But I cannot see her, for the many blossoms in the way.

Something—someone—list!
Volce? or einn bute?
Only music-mist.
Rlaing—falling—mute.
In the orchard, in the orchard.
Something sweet sounds far away:
But I cannot hear her, for the many bees that hum-wil day.
